By Turner (Shelby)

AN ACT to amend Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 4, Chapter 29; Title 13, Chapter 26 and Title 71, Chapter 5, relative to the delivery of human and community services.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE:

Section 1. Tennessee Code Annotated Section 4-29-102 is amended by adding the following as a new subsection:

(c)(1) The general assembly declares that the delivery of human and community services to the state's citizens, including, but not limited to, the poor and aged, is a matter of public interest. The general assembly declares that the provision of human and community services should include, but not be limited to, the following goals: reduce and eliminate poverty; help every Tennessean become self-sufficient to improve their quality of life and standard of living; and coordinate, use, and distribute the state's financial, human, program, and other resources in the most effective and efficient manner possible.

(2) The general assembly realizes that in many areas of the state, there are duplicate human and community service and action organizations that receive state appropriations and/or state-administered funds and/or contract with various state departments, which could result in an unnecessary duplication of services and administration, thereby resulting in an unnecessary duplication of costs. Such unnecessary duplication could decrease the overall effectiveness of human and community service programs and agencies. The general assembly further realizes that if such unnecessary duplication exists, it is not efficient, effective, or in the public's best interest.

(3) Where there are two (2) or more agencies that receive state appropriations and/or state-administered funds and/or contract with various state departments in the same county or service area, upon review pursuant to this chapter the reviewing authority shall make a finding of a duplication of services, administration or costs, and report this finding and make recommendations to the general assembly to correct this situation upon reauthorization of such agency or agencies.

(4) The general assembly concludes that the evaluation of human and community service delivery agencies, their services, and programs is necessary to determine whether they are achieving their goals, using resources as effectively and efficiently as possible, and minimizing any duplication of services, administration, and costs. The general assembly further concludes that there is no systematic on-going effort, using objective outcome measures, to evaluate human and community service and action organizations. The general assembly further concludes that a statewide strategy for such delivery would enable, promote, and require the effective and efficient coordination of programs, services, and resources among the state's human and community service delivery organizations.

(5) The general assembly finds that the state's human and community service and action organizations, including, but not limited to, community action agencies and human resource agencies, were authorized by state law and receive state appropriations and/or state-administered funds and/or contract with various state departments to provide services to Tennessee residents. Therefore, these agencies should be independently evaluated, using objective outcome measures.
